Crew Familiarisation Cover

The West of England helps meet Members' operational requirements by offering additional insurance products which complement normal P&I cover. Crew Familiarisation Cover protects a Member from liabilities for crew and other personnel on board of a vessel prior to delivery or after sale.

The Problem

Normal P&I cover includes liability for the injury, illness or death of a crew member subject to the terms of the crew contract having been submitted and to and approved by the Managers. The liability, however, must arise in connection with an entered vessel of which the injured person is a crewman.

When a Member is buying a vessel or prior to delivery of a new building they will usually have crew on board in order to familiarise themselves with the vessel and its equipment. Likewise, where a Member has sold a vessel some crew may remain on board after delivery in order to assist the new owner and his crew take over the vessel. In both situations the crew will not be on board an entered vessel. The Member may also have an exposure to third party liabilities caused by the actions of their crew to the owners.

The Solution

The West of England's Familiarisation Crew Cover indemnifies the Member for legal and/or contractual liabilities arising out of the presence of officers, crew, supernumeraries, supercargoes and superintendents, and any other personnel in the owners employment on board a non-entered vessel. Fully flexible and able to be tailored to meet a Member's precise requirements, it is backed by the West of England's outstanding service.
